Payment Issues

Do you have any questions about payment issues on Amazon Pay? Find the answers below:

Why did the payment fail?

Payments made on Amazon.in can sometimes fail or remain in a pending stage. If you are facing this issue, you have the option to revise your payment. Here are some probable reasons:

- You may have entered incorrect credit or debit card details (e.g., name on the card, card number, CVV, 3D-secure PIN, and expiry date).
- In case of an American Express card, your payment may fail if your billing address or PIN code is incorrect.
- You may have closed or refreshed the page or went back to the previous page, while your payment was still being processed.
- In some cases, your payment could fail if connection with your bank was not possible due to technical issues or your bank may be going through an outage.
- Your card may be blocked for online transactions.

To revise your failed payment for an order, go to Your Orders and follow the on-screen instructions.

Note: Per the RBI update, those who have not used their credit or debit cards for an online payment (on Amazon or any other online merchant) previously or whose cards were issued on or before March 16, 2020, are required to contact their respective banks and get their credit or debit card activated for online transactions.

Why was the payment pending?

Here are some probable reasons for your payment to remain pending:

- If you paid using net banking, we may be awaiting the payment confirmation from your bank. This can take up to a few days. For an immediate status update, please contact your bank.
- We may be unable to contact your bank or card issuer which can cause a delay. If so, you will receive an email from us on the same.
- If your initial payment attempt was unsuccessful, your payment might stay in a pending stage.

Note: If your payment is not successful, you will see a message "We haven't received payment confirmation from your bank or credit / debit card yet". In such cases, please do not attempt paying again unless you have received an email from us or you are sure that your payment has failed. The order will be auto cancelled if the payment is not completed within the timeline mentioned in the email. However, if you have accidentally paid twice, your amount will be refunded if the bill payment failed. If the bill payment succeeded, then it will be adjusted by the biller in next billing cycle.

New RBI guidelines/rules:

- If you have not given explicit consent to save your cards as per the new RBI guidelines, Amazon will no longer store such cards.
- From September 30, 2022 onwards, one card can be saved as per the new guidelines in a maximum of 10 Amazon accounts. If any existing card is saved in more than 10 accounts, it will be deleted even if you have given consent to save the card.
